

Fred: Did you see ehh George's new tattoo?

Ed: No?

Fred: The one, it's like a.... he got a horse tattooed on his arm.
It's really high quality, I was surprised at the level.

Ed: Did he say, did he say how much it cost or...?

Fred: Umm I didn't ask. I thought maybe it would be rude to ask directly like that

Ed: Ohh fair enough.

Fred: It looked kind of expensive I think he- he went to a proper studio.

Ed: Wow, that's, I'm kinda surprised by that. How how, about you, have you got any tattoos?

Fred: Yeah, I've got a small tattoo on my ankle although I, I never talk about it with people, uhh it's just a little frog that I got.

Ed: Huh, when did you get it?

Fred: Uhh when I turned 18. The day I turned 18 I uhh got it.

Ed: Oh right, is there any reason you chose a frog or...?

Fred: Uhh they're beautiful creatures and I am a fan of frogs.

Ed: Oh , fair enough, was it painful or not too bad?

Fred: Yeah it wa... it was very painful. I regret choosing my ankle cus it, there's a lot of bone there so I think the forearm is better or maybe the chest. I don't recommend the ankle.

Ed: Wha what did your parents say when you got it?

Fred: I didn't tell them. They've never seen it.

Ed: Never seen it?

Fred: Yeah, I always wear socks around them. I'm not gonna tell them.

Ed: Yeah (they) might just get upset at this stage, right?

Fred: Exactly. Why, would you ever get a tattoo?